

No Branch State Banks.

In deciding the question of whether or not a State bank can establish a branch without incorporating it, the Court of Appeals fully sustained the position taken by Ben L. Bruner, Secretary of State, who held that the State banks must incorporate anew for each branch established.

In the case of Bruner against the Citizens' Bank of Shelbyville. The Citizens' Bank established a branch at Waddy, a branch of the Citizens' Bank of Shelbyville. Dr. Bruner ordered the Shelbyville bank either to discontinue its branch at Waddy or incorporate it separately from the parent bank. The bank declined to do this and a suit was filed to make a test of the point.

Reward For Services.

Because of the service he gave the Commonwealth in suppressing the night riders around Birmingham, Otis Blick on Wednesday received a pardon from Gov. Willson. Blick was charged with flourishing a deadly weapon in a public place. He was one of those who testified against the night riders and Gov. Willson says in granting the pardon that Blick was of great service to the State. It was charged that the night riders were behind the prosecution of Blick, who has not yet been tried, and that he actually did not flourish the weapon, only displaying it so as to intimidate a band of night riders.

Gov. Willson also granted a pardon before trial to Charles Bennett, under indictment in Crittenden county on a charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons. This was another case that was an outcome of the night rider raids. Bennett is a son of Henry Bennett, who was whipped in a raid at Dyousburg. Gov. Willson says there was excuse for Bennett carrying a revolver in the troublous times which existed in Crittenden county at the time that the offense was alleged to have been committed.

GOLD-RIMMED GLASSES BARRED.

Quote the Bible Against Them--
The Question of Gold-Filled
Teeth--Quaint Characteristics of a Little Known Sect.

New York Sun.

Through an official act of the Church of the Brethren in Pennsylvania members of the sect who wear gold-rimmed spectacles and eyeglasses are virtually called heretics.

The Brethren, or Dunkers, have always been opposed to all forms of display. In the rural districts the members adhere faithfully to the old time regulations.

Those who have come to the cities and established churches there have discontinued many of these customs. The men wear neckties and watch chains, which the older rural members regarded as abominations. The city churches have organs and stained glass windows, which are not tolerated in the rural churches.

The city members do not wish to make themselves conspicuous by dressing differently from their fellows, so gold-rimmed spectacles and eyeglasses have come into common use among them. Last year the two delegates which the Germantown Church of the Brethren sent to the district conference for Eastern Pennsylvania wore gold-rimmed spectacles. Because of this fact the conference refused to admit them.

The action of the conference incensed the Germantown congregation. The congregation instructed the pastor, Rev. M. C. Swigart, to prepare a paper for the consideration of this year's conference protesting against the ruling. Mr. Swigart drafted a protest, and it received the unanimous sanction of his church.

The District Conference met in Rheims, Lancaster county. Neither of the Germantown delegates wore glasses, and so there was no opposition to their admission. When the opportunity came Mr. Swigart presented his protest and explained the attitude of his congregation.

He particularly urged the conference to be consistent, pointing out the fact that, while it excluded men wearing gold-rimmed glasses, it admitted many delegates who wore gold-filled teeth, and the teeth in some instances contained four or five times as much gold as a pair of spectacles. He did not want gold teeth shut out, but he thought the privileges which their owners had should also be accorded to the owners of gold spectacles.

The opponents of gold-rimmed spectacles had little to say, save to assert that steel frames ought to be good enough for any one, and to quote these two Scriptural passages:

I Peter, iii., : "Whose adorning let it not be the outward adorning of plating the hair, and of wearing gold, or of putting on of apparel."

I Timothy, ii., 9: "In the manner also that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety; not with brodered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array."

The conference is made up largely of congregations in the German farming districts, and the delegates by an overwhelming vote decided to return the protest of the Germantown congregation without action, which was, in effect, a refusal to recognize the right of men wearing gold-rimmed glasses to seats in the conference.

Rev. Mr. Swigart proposes to appeal to the National Conference. Cincinnati Enquirer, June 17.

NATURAL GAS COMPANY ANSWERS

PROTEST AGAINST RAISING PRICE.

Says That It Has Made But 7 1-2 Per Cent.
Dividend All Told And That Its Stock Sells
For Only $13 Per Share.

The Central Kentucky Natural Gas Company has answered the letter of the joint committees from Lexington, Mt. Sterling and Winchester protesting against the raising of the price of gas in the three cities. The company explains that in three years and a half they have paid but 7 1/2 per cent. dividends all told and must go to great expense in developing new gas wells. The letter follows:

GAS COMPANY'S LETTER.

Mr. Lucien Beckner, Secretary Winchester Commercial Club, Winchester, Kentucky.

Dear Sir:—Your letter of May 29 has just been received by us.

In increasing the rate at which natural gas is to be sold, notice of which has recently been published in the newspapers in the cities supplied by us, we were so clearly within the rights granted us by our franchises, that we feel that injustice has been done us by the adverse criticisms which have appeared in some of the newspapers.

When we began business under these franchises, while there was no provision for any minimum rate, we stated that we would sell gas for the first two years at 25 cents per thousand; this rate continued for about three years and a half. We were aware at the time we organized the company, that it was going to be an unusually costly proposition to bring gas from a field with so slow a natural pressure as that in Menefee county, from whence we draw our supply, for the reason that the natural pressure would not be sufficient to carry the supply required after the consumers began to come on freely, and necessarily we foresaw that this would necessitate the construction and maintenance of a costly compressing station and the constant drilling of new wells, with attendant additions to the field lines. For this reason, we would not have gone into the business unless we had been granted franchises which gave us the right to charge as high as 40 cents per thousand. Our idea in charging 25 cents per thousand for the first two years was for the purpose of introducing the use of gas, and with the feeling that this reduced rate would in a measure compensate those consumers who assisted us by coming onto the lines early for the expense they would be put to in piping their houses and we feel that we have dealt very fairly and magnanimously with our consumers in continuing this rate for a much longer period than had been thought of in the beginning.

The natural gas business is a hazardous one at best and it is proving more than usually so in Kentucky. There has been drilled in our Menefee county field, 103 wells, 59 of which are gas producers and 44 were dry and worthless. Our field there is confined to a certain area covering about 25 square miles. We have spent a large amount of money in drilling wells in an endeavor to extend the limits of this field, with but indifferent success. Besides these wells in Menefee county, we drilled three wildcat test wells in Wolfe county, all of which were non-productive. Our compressing station in Menefee county has cost a great deal of money, and although we have 10 large compressors installed there, we have decided to add three more compressors. This, of course, will necessitate the enlarging of the building. We have also concluded to make a great many changes in our field lines, taking up present lines and replacing same with pipe of larger size. With these additional pumps and the larger lines, we expect to be able to take all the gas from the Menefee county field, thus prolonging the supply from that field so long as possible.

During the three years and a half we have been in business, we have paid but 7 1/2 per cent dividends, all told, and we regret to say that it is altogether likely that the large expenditures we are called upon to make in adding to our compressing station and lines, and drilling additional wells this summer, will prevent our declaring any further dividend this year. Although we feel reasonably certain of our present field in Menefee county affording a sufficient supply for our consumers for some years to come, yet it is absolutely necessary for the perpetuation of the business, that other gas pools be discovered, and we will have to accumulate a considerable fund for the purpose of drilling wells in untested territory, with a view to finding a further supply of gas. It may be that these operations will prove so costly that we will eventually have to avail ourselves of the maximum price permitted under the franchise. We trust, however, that both for the sake of ourselves and our consumers, additional gas fields may be developed without unduly heavy expenditures.

With regard to the price at which the stock of the Central Kentucky Natural Gas Company is being held, we would say that a considerable amount has been sold recently at $13 per share. Two years ago $29 per share could readily be obtained for it. So that, instead of the stock increasing in value, as you supposed, there has been a marked decrease. This, we take it, reflects the depletion of the field caused by the pull upon it last winter, this depletion being much larger than we had anticipated.

We are making earnest and persistent efforts to conduct the business of the Central Kentucky Natural Gas Company carefully and with the utmost economy, and with a sincere desire to render the best possible service to our consumers, as well as with a care for the interest of those who hold the bonds of the company, and at the same time trust that we may be able to return at least small dividends to our stockholders.

Your letter appears to have been written in a friendly and fair spirit and we have, therefore, endeavored to answer it frankly and in a way to give you a good, general idea as to the situation of the business of the company; we particularly dwell on the field situation, as that is the vital point.

Trusting that you may find our letter entirely satisfactory, and assuring you that we value most highly the good will of the citizens of the cities which we are supplying with natural gas, and Wrights Receive Nation's Tribute.

Orville and Wilbur Wright, of Dayton, Ohio, the American brothers aeronauts, received a tribute of recognition from this country when President Taft, standing in the East Room of the White House, surrounded by the diplomatic representatives of all great nations and men prominent in science and public life, presented to them the medals given by the Aero Club of America in appreciation of their conquest of the air.

It was a big day for the Wrights, but they have been accustomed to big days ever since they have been hobnobbing with Kings and Emperors in Europe.

Miss Catherine Wright, sister of the aeronauts, accompanied the brothers and was quite as much lionized. After President Taft had congratulated the Wright brothers individually he turned to Miss Wright and said: "And I want to congratulate the most important member of the family."

The medals bear the likenesses of the two brothers and an inscription. They cost $2,500.

TO REMOVE TO KENTUCKY.

With a view to giving the city of Louisville additional prestige as an industrial and commercial city, the Louisville Board of Trade has called an open meeting of citizens. The purpose of the meeting is set forth in a resolution. The resolution adopted says:

"Be it resolved that an open meeting of the Louisville Board of Trade be called for Thursday, June 24, to consider the advisability of inviting the distillers, brewers and liquor merchants of Tennessee affected by the recent prohibition bills of that State to remove to Kentucky, and to consider the attitude of the Louisville Board of Trade on the question of State-wide prohibition in Kentucky; and, further, that a committee be appointed to confer with the other commercial organizations of Louisville in regard to the above two questions."

Indications are before many years commercial bodies in other states will be extending a like invitation to Louisville and other Kentucky firms. Let the good work, suppressing the traffic, continue.

POLITICALLY-PROTECTED SALOON.

In Atlantic City, N. J., on Thursday condemnation of both the keeper of the politically-protected saloon dive and the preacher "politician" was the principal note in the address of Morris Westheimer at session of the National Association of wholesale dealers.

Joseph Debar, of Cincinnati, declared that the disreputable saloon is the greatest weapon the temperance people have in their fight for prohibition.

The report of the Protective Bureau called attention to stamping out disreputable saloons and dives for the benefit of the legitimate liquor dealers. The platform declares that political control of saloons is an abuse which must be rectified. The platform calls for the moderate use of liquor rather than an attempt at total prohibition.

"The most extravagant woman" is the term that other women have applied to Mrs. Howard Gould since the revelations in her divorce suit. She spent $224,000 in one year, according to Delancey Nicoll, Mr. Gould's attorney.

Torn with anger and extreme humiliation, alternately flushing with shame, sobbing or clenching her hands in exasperation, Mrs. Gould sat through a trying ordeal at the continuation of her suit for separation against Howard Gould, third son of the late Jay Gould.

Various witnesses say that she has often been drunk.

Husbands, how would you like to see your wife drunk? Quit your drinking.

Signature Not Mr. Cleveland's.

In New York on June 15, Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland awarded in public for the first time since her husband's death to testify for the prosecution in the case of Broughton Brandenburg, a magazine writer, who is charged with selling the New York Times a forged political article purporting to have been written by former President Grover Cleveland.

She declared emphatically that the signature to the article in question was not that of her husband.

Mushroom Weighing Over Thirty-Pounds.

A mushroom was discovered near Pittsburg by Dr. Willits, professor of Economics in the Carnegie Technical Institute, at the base of a great oak tree. It is 22 inches high, 32 in circumference, 9 inches thick and weighs 33 pounds.

Harm Done by Wrong Food.

A New York clinic specialist says: "Had I to choose between the cook and the apothecary as collaborator, I think I would not hesitate for a moment to yoke myself with the former." He goes on to say that "the board kills more than the sword." Many people eat not only the wrong foods, but too much of them.

LUCK IN HORSESHOE

ACCEPTED BELIEF.

ODD POINTS ABOUT THIS WIDELY

DATES BACK TO THE MYTHOLOGY OF THE

CONSIDERED A SPECIFIC AGAINST

EARTHQUAKES.

Of all the emblems for good fortune the horseshoe stands among the first. Everybody knows it is unlucky to place a horseshoe on the road without picking it up. It is a luck emblem of the greatest power. Again, we are indebted for this statement to old tales, centuries in age, that have descended from father to son, from mother to daughter, through the years.

It is necessary to notice how the horseshoe lies before picking it up. If the ends are away from one, the sign of keeping evil spirits away, the shoe, but by extravagance, carelessness, or the operation of rogues, it may depart almost as soon as it comes. A sign to take care is given, therefore.

The right thing to do is to turn the horseshoe around, so that the ends are toward the finder, before picking it up. And to carry it home it is correct to hold it with the ends upward or the arch will attract to itself all the promised fortune.

When the shoe is nailed up on door or window in its destined place the ends must be upward, or the whole luck emblem will be nullified. Instead of keeping evil spirits away, the shoe, in the wrong position, will attract them! Instead of bringing good fortune, the luck of the house will be diverted.

A century ago it was very common to see upon a cowshed door the horseshoe that scared off witches who were keeping evil spirits away, the shoe, in the wrong position, will attract them! Instead of bringing good fortune, the luck of the house will be diverted.

The old myths repay research. The luck of the horseshoe has a most respectable beginning. It is traced to the religion of the old Greeks and to the time of Poseidon, who was identical with the Roman sea god Neptune.

To Poseidon horses were sacred, and to him the sea was sacrificed. Poseidon was believed to have struck the first horse when he struck the ground with his trident and a horse sprang from the hole, which afterwards became a spring. The sea god was the lord of springs. To him all springs were ascribed. In the shape of a horse he sometimes wandered by the shores of his ocean domain and where he struck his hoofs deeply there the waters gushed out and permanent springs were formed.

This is the reason why horseshoes are reckoned lucky. Going to the root of the matter, one sees a nature myth as the root principle. From the sea all rain comes and to the sea all springs owe primal origin; and to the rain and the fresh water, sea derived, we owe all fertility on earth.

The old Greeks therefore worshiped Poseidon as the fortune giver through his hoofs, and the traditions hovering about this small body of water, the Indians around Islet used to call it Ronkonko-Mo, the many of the present day Long Islands say Ronkon-KO-ma. "Old residents" tell that the tide rises and falls twice in 24 hours, sometimes at the equinoxes, two feet. It is believed that there is an underground connection with Great South Bay, leading to the ocean by way of Fire Island. At times, they will declare, the water is salt, and at other times fresh.

London's Erudivt Cabmen.

The two cabmen authors who had just been brought to light deserve a place beside the erudite driver discovered by Sir Frederick Bridge. This cabman often drives Sir Frederick home from the Albert hall after the performances of the Royal Choral society, and one wonders as he received his fare how astonished he must have been by criticizing the tempo at which he took some of the "Messiah" choruses in the most unbecoming manner. This started a friendship between the musician and the cabman, and the former discovered in the latter a very solid character and a real sufferer and got to think highly of his opinions. On one occasion, indeed, the cabman asked him to perform a new oratorio by Puccini (which Sir Frederick had not then seen) and offered to lend him a copy of the score.—London News.

Work and Nerves.

Work, again, is the enemy of insomnia. The sufferer from bad or broken sleep is liable to give up duties or to be slack in their performance, to abandon exercise and forget his usual hobbies because of his anticipation of a night of distress. He must, therefore, to prepare himself for sleep by congenial activity, in which his mind will be weaned away from the fear of not sleeping.

Once more, work is an enemy to the fears and impulsions, to the strange sense of unreality and other morbid symptoms which accompany psychasthenia. Work restores to such a sufferer "the function of the real." It is only through contact with reality that man, whether normal or abnormal, can find abiding satisfaction.—Rev. S. S. McCoub, in Harper's Bazar.

Sets Law of Kitchen.

A "law of the kitchen" has been set forth in England in an opinion by a county judge. He holds that where the mistress of a house goes to the kitchen to lead the maid of all work the two are brought on terms of equality such as would not be tolerated in large establishments. The case was that of a cook and general housemaid sought to recover a month's wages from her former mistress in New Orleans. The mistress asserted that the servant always "answered her back," but the judge held that under the circumstances this was not sufficient to justify dismissal.

CALL LAKE FREAK OF NATURE.

Mysterious Body of Water in the State of New York.

The brakeman on the Long Island railroad was talking to two schoolboys. Say, kids, did you know there's a lake down there where the suicides disappear, and their bodies are found in the Atlantic ocean? That's a gospel fact. I lost a friend there once. We dragged for his body three days, and some fishermen picked it up near Oak Island beach, just outside Fire Island Inlet. Now, kids, what do you think of that? I can explain all about it." Needless to remark, the boys were much interested.

The lake referred to is Ronkonoma, a freak of nature, about 45 miles from New York's city hall, and half way between Stony Brook and Sayville. Strange are the traditions hovering about this small body of water. The Indians around Islet used to call it Ronkonko-Mo, the many of the present day Long Islands say Ronkon-KO-ma. "Old residents" tell that the tide rises and falls twice in 24 hours, sometimes at the equinoxes, two feet. It is believed that there is an underground connection with Great South Bay, leading to the ocean by way of Fire Island. At times, they will declare, the water is salt, and at other times fresh.

Pittsburg is Doomed.

Henry C. Frick said: "I wish to serve notice on the capitalists of Pittsburgh that this city is doomed as an industrial center unless the moneyed men get together and administer a dose of financial medicine. When the United States Steel Corporation broke ground for Garry it practically sounded the death knell of Pittsburgh. Other lake towns will follow the lead of Garry and in time the vast steel interests will be something unknown to Pittsburgh."

Confederates Honor Gen. Grant's Son.

A frenzied demonstration of welcome by the men in gray for the son of the man who defeated them marked the final scene of the nineteenth annual re-union of the United Confederate Veterans Thursday at Memphis, Tenn. In the reviewing stand stood General Frederick Dent Grant, of the United States Army. The cavalry division approached and its commanding officer, old and grizzled, peered steadily at General Grant's son. He turned in his saddle and yelled, "Come on, you kids! Here is General Grant come to life in his son."

With one of their old-time rebel yells the division charged upon the stand to shake the hand of the son of their old-time enemy. The stocky army officer's eyes filled with tears, and his shoulders shook with emotion as he murmured: "God bless you all, boys, God bless you."

The battle-torn banners were grouped at his feet and waved over his head in salute. It is doubtful if any Northern man, even a President, ever received such an ovation.

Want Reduction of Fire Insurance Rate.

That the fire losses within the past several years have been less than half of the premiums was the most important fact contained in the report of the Executive Committee to the Board of Directors of the Louisville Board of Trade together with the recommendation that this fact be laid before the Board of Underwriters with a demand for substantial reductions immediately from the present rate.

The following from the Board of Underwriters and the State Insurance Commissioner bear out the contention of the committee:

Fifteen-year statement furnished by the Board of Underwriters: Fifteen years from 1873 to 1908, premiums $15,390,379; losses $7,263,836.

Ten-year statement by the State Insurance Commission: Ten years from 1899 to 1909, premiums $10,772,630; losses $5,664,706.

Prof. Mitchell Pardoned.

Prof. Robert Mitchell has been pardoned from the Georgia penitentiary by Governor Smith. Mitchell was sent up for life for murder. Gov. Smith says in issuing the pardon:

"He has become paralyzed from his waist down. He is helpless and harmless, and incurable. He has a wife and relatives who are willing to care for him. The ends of justice do not require that he should remain in his piteous condition away from those who can care for his wants." The Prof. and family played at Trimble's risk over a year ago.

Good Roads.

The following is the amendment to the State Constitution that is to be voted on this fall:

"The credit of the Commonwealth may be given, pledged or loaned to any county of the Commonwealth for public road purposes, and any county may be permitted to incur an indebtedness in any amount fixed by the county, not in excess of five per centum of the value of the taxable property therein, for public road purposes in said county, provided said additional indebtedness is submitted to the voters of the county for their ratification or rejection at a special election held for said purpose in such manner as may be provided by law, and when any such indebtedness is incurred by any county, said county may levy, in addition to the tax rate allowed under Section 157 of the Constitution of Kentucky, an amount not exceeding twenty cents on the hundred dollars of the assessed valuation of said county for the purpose of paying the interest on said indebtedness and providing a sinking fund for the payment of said indebtedness."

Nothing for Holder of $40,000 Mortgage.
The people of Grant county, Kan., voted to make New Ulysses a new county seat. They notified the holder of the bonds of the old town to foreclose his $40,000 claim against the town. Some weeks ago every building, except the courthouse and schoolhouse, was moved to a new town site. The bondholders will find 160 acres of land, worth, perhaps, $10 an acre, and one structure. Ulysses once was a city of 2,000 people.

WHAT WORRIED WIFE

MR. SPRIGGSWORTH WAS ALTOGETHER TOO HEALTHY.

His Affectionate Better Half Had Some Peculiar Reasons for Wanting Doctor to Look Him Over at Once.

"Doctor," said Mrs. Spriggsworth, "I wish you would come and see my husband as soon as you can so I can conveniently have him brought to you. I've been urging him to call on you at your office, but I just can't get him started. I'm awfully worried about him."

"I will try to stop and see him this afternoon. Is he in bed?"

"Oh, no. No, he's not in bed, and perhaps you better come in the evening or early in the morning, because you won't find him at home in the afternoon."

"Very well, I'll come to-night. What seems to be the trouble? Has he caught a bad cold?"

"No, he hasn't any more of a cold than it is common for most people to have at this time of the year. I really don't know what the matter with him is. I think you ought to give him a thorough examination."

"I'm sorry to hear that his health is not good. I thought when I saw him a few days ago that he was looking remarkably well. When did you begin to notice that he was not feeling right?"

"Why, he claims that there is nothing the matter with him, but, of course, there must be."

"Does he appear to be bothered by indigestion?"

"No, he has always been very free from anything of that kind. You see, he manages to get a good deal of outdoor exercise."

"That's good. A man who takes plenty of outdoor exercise really ought to have little to say for a doctor. Perhaps the trouble is with his eyes. Does he complain of having headaches?"

"No, he never has them at all."

"Well, does he seem to be run down physically?"

"Not noticeably so."

"Is he unusually nervous or irritable?"

"Oh, no, not at all. Really, do you know, I sometimes believe he can't have a nerve in his body. He is always so placid. Nothing ever seems to disturb him in the least."

"A very curious case, indeed. What has caused you to think I ought to examine him?"

"Why, he hasn't been in bed a day or taken a drop of medicine for about fifteen years, and I can't get it out of my head that he ought to see a doctor before he gets down sick. I think that an operation of some kind now would save him an awfully hard time later on."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Seeing Boston.
A rural gentleman engaged an amateur guide to conduct him around Boston on a sightseeing trip. On their way to the statehouse the pair passed through the Public Garden. The farmer seemed greatly impressed with the statue "Commemorating the discovery that the inhaling of ether causes insensibility to pain."

A few minutes later they reached the statehouse grounds. Again the farmer's attention was attracted by the statue. It was a statue of Maj. Gen. Nathaniel P. Banks, and had been set up but not yet unveiled. The figure of the general had been heavily padded, and wrapped with muslin to protect it during shipment, and as yet the padding had not been removed.

Gazing at the bewigged figure, the farmer exclaimed: "Wall, I sawn! What be that?"

"That," said the guide looking in vain for an inscription to enlighten him, "that is the scratched his head, 'that is to commemorate the discovery of the benefit of the plaster-cast.'"

One on the Workman.
When Tommy was taking Papa his dinner he stopped for a moment to watch a workman emptying a sewer.

"That," remarked Tommy interestedly, "is the grate my brother lost a shilling down."

The workman's eyes lit up.

"Well, young man," he said, with a show of carelessness, "you'd better get forward with that dinner before it's cold."

In about half an hour Tommy returned to find the man still at the same grate.

"Are you quite sure it was this grate the shilling was lost in?" said the workman.

"I'm certain," replied Tommy, "because I saw my father get it out."—Tit-Bits.

Keeping Down the Belt Line.
"The trouble with you women," said a man recently, "is that you depend upon this straight-front corset instead of the proper exercise." This shows how little he knows about it. A number of women in Aitchison got down on the floor every night and roll and roll like puppies at play. Then they stood on their toes and balance backward, forward and sideways, and take other exercises that would make a contortionist envious them, and every bit of it is done to keep the belt line down. Women wear the straight front, but they don't depend upon it.—Aitchison (Kan.) Globe.

Hungry.
"I suppose you're glad now that your daughter is home from college?" "Can't say that I am. Since she got home she hasn't a thing to eat but what she could cook in a chafing dish."—Detroit Free Press.

WINTER LIFE OF THE ESKIMO.

With a Night Three Months Long the People Simply Hibernates.

A writer in the London Magazine describes a visit he paid last year to the winter "idlers" or snow houses. These are much more pretentious erections than the summer "tupiks," or tents of skins, and are made to resist the extreme cold of the Arctic winter, and to serve as a comfortable hibernating place for the months during which the sun never rises above the horizon. The foundation is usually made of stones, upon which cleverly shaped blocks of snow are built up to form a dome-shaped hut. After these have been frozen together the interior is lined with skins.

A long tunnel is then constructed to serve as a porch, this being built very low and narrow, necessitating an entrance being made on hands and knees, closing the first skin door before opening the second, so as to admit as little of the icy atmosphere as possible.

Heat is supplied by a "ikomar," or oil stove, made from a kind of soapstone in the shape of an oval saucer. It is filled with seal or walrus oil, never sweet-smelling, and usually very rank.

This floats the wick, which is made of moss. This stove not only serves for heating, but also for cooking purposes, though I believe the greater part of their food is eaten raw, or at any rate, not more than warmed through.

I saw one man eat quite four pounds of raw beefsteak, which was frozen as hard as a rock, only waiting for a second for it to half thaw in his capacious mouth.

At the back of the "igloo," at the end remote from the door, is a raised bench covered with skins, which serves as the sleeping chamber. Here the whole family takes up all of every vestige of clothing, finding quite sufficient warmth in the thick bear and deer skins which serve as blankets.

The Shy Child.
The first important step toward helping a child of this kind is to give her self-confidence, even if you run the risk of making her vain and conceited. She needs a little wholesome praise to make her feel that her playmates will like her. Make her look as attractive as possible, and tell her that she is attractive; see that she is trained in all the arts and graces that will make her attractive; send her to dancing school. As she gets older, see that she excels in games, in athletics, in anything that will give her confidence in herself when she associates with her schoolmates. If she is going away to school or college give her lessons on the banjo and guitar, so that she can join the banjo and guitar club. If she has any talent of any kind by which she can entertain her friends help her to develop it. She must be taught to feel that she can help others to have a good time and that consequently she is welcome among them. Once that feeling is established the battle is won.—Harper's Bazar.

Was in a Tight Place.
For many years old Col. Leet resided in Ninth street, New York, near the Hotel St. Denis. He is still remembered by hundreds of New Yorkers for his bright manner, taking up any remarks. When the project for erecting an equestrian statue to Gen. Washington in Union square was proposed Col. Leet was intrusted with the other day of the subscription papers for circulation. Shortly after receiving it he approached a well-known citizen and asked for a donation to the monument. The citizen declined to subscribe, stating in a rather pompous manner:

"I do not consider, sir, that there is any necessity for a monument to Mr. Washington. His fame is undying; sir, he is enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen."

"Is he enshrined in your heart?" softly inquired the colonel.

"Well, all I have to say," retorted Col. Leet, "is that he is in a tight place."—New York Press.

Elephant Turned Off Water.
Julie, one of the elephants at the Central park zoo in New York, gave a clever demonstration the other day of the wisdom of her tribe. There is a hydrant just outside of Julie's cage and until Saturday it had been fitted with a round hose to turn on and off the flow of water. On Saturday William Walker, the zoo plumber, fitted a new spigot on the hydrant and put it permanently in a T-shaped handle. Julie carefully examined the handle several times Sunday. She looked it over again, and after much fumbling, turned it and produced a flow of water. Then she put her trunk under the stream, filled it and drank copiously. What pleased Keeper Snyder was that the elephant was so careful to turn off the flow of water after drinking.

A Mistake.
"I thought that was the way that girl talked," she was the whole thing in the vaudeville sketch, and when I went to see the act, all she did was to appear to be in a room in a milliner's shop, pasting inside bands on hats."

"Oh, then she probably gave you a wrong impression by telling you she was a headliner!"

Of Course.
Lou—"This love that makes the world go round."

Sue—"What we really need is something to make the marriageable young men go round."

THE VERY BEST.

Have any of our readers seen a recent copy of the Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer? If not, it will pay to send for a copy, if for no other purpose than to note its present great worth as an educator in all things that tend to make life prosperous, and home, the happiest place on earth.

The editor by asking its readers to criticize and suggest improvements; and following advice thus obtained is enabled to produce a paper that exactly fits needs of a family and a material aid to father, mother and children in reaching that higher level in social life, where content and comfort reign supreme.

Father obtains ample information that guides in the where, when and how to regulate and increase the income from his efforts.

The mother in management of household affairs, practical economy, government of children, and other duties that makes her toil a labor of love. Children's minds and hearts are freed from thoughts of questionable amusements and frivolities of life, and encouraged to emulate all that is helpful in planning for a useful future in life.

The Grand Idea being that: "As are our homes, so will be the Community, State and Nation."

A most desirable help, is a non-sectarian sermon each week, as preached by that Biblical Student Pastor Charles Russell; a forcible reminder of the spiritual and temporal rewards gained by righteous living as preferable to a Godless life that brings nought but misery to the home.

Other departments and features are above the ordinary, the unanimous verdict of its readers being: "The cleanest and best family Weekly known to them."

SLIGHT ERROR IN DIAGNOSIS.

Mr. Fullerton Not the Mind Reader He Thought He Was.

"Flitterby, by Jove! And headed this way, too! Just my luck. Borrowed $20 of me last week and $10 four days ago. That time it will probably be a touch for an additional ten, in order to make it an even $40. Hang the dog!"

"Ah! Fullerton! You'd just the man I'm looking for! I'd like to borrow—"

"I knew it the minute I saw you coming. This borrowing habit grows on a man and makes him every time. Half the world's borrow from the other half; that's the reason half the world's peevish eye and dodging round the corner—trying to sidestep the other half—"

"Guess you're right, old man; but I want to borrow—"

"I know you do: that's the trouble that keeps friends on the anxious seat. Borrowing is subversive of true friendship."

"Very true, old chap; but as a fellow is in hard luck at times the only thing he can do—"

"Is to do it right, eh? Same old story—hard luck, illness in the family, poor business, frozen your roll, which is in another person's pocket, pressing note down to him every time. Half the world's borrow from the other half. There's an element of courage about that proceeding on his part that appeals to me to eternally hounding a friend for money is—"

"I agree with you in every respect, but I want to borrow—"

"I could tell it at a glance. Some thing in your miserably shifting and faltering demeanor betrayed you at once. Quit it, Flitterby. Retain some remnant of your former manliness. Make an effort."

"Look here, man; you're going too far! I want to borrow—"

"Sure you do! Why, it's got to be a regular profession with you. You want to borrow—"

"Your fountain pen!" suddenly interjected Flitterby. "I wish to endorse this check to your order. I've been trying to tell you so for ten minutes."—Puck.

Weasels Attacked Cow.
Waymakers on the farm of H. A. Sell, near Hanover, Pa., noticed a cow in a nearby meadow strangely jumping about and behaving badly. Upon investigation they were astonished to find that eight weasels had attacked her. After a hard fight the farmers succeeded in killing several of the bloodsuckers and scattering the remainder.

Best Work at Fifty.
In the industrial world it has become accepted that a man is too old at 40, and the London county council works department decided last year not to engage men above 35. How is it in the intellectual world? Despite all the evidences of precocity, Mr. Donald arrives at a conclusion which gives an average of 50 for the master work of great men.—T. P.'s Weekly.

ORIGINS OF NAMES

INTERESTING TO TRACE PATRONYMS TO SOURCE.

Many Derived from Trades or Occupations—Towns and Sections of Countries Have Been Responsible for Some Others.

There was appropriateness in the Lincoln celebration in Lincoln, England; for undoubtedly "Father Abraham" was derived from some long forgotten man who left that city bearing some such name as George or War of Lincoln.

London, York, Boston and Berlin or Berlin appear as family names in the same way. Redfield and Oldfield are farm patronyms once used as the names of Scottish farms are now for their proprietors. Titles of nobility similarly come from a county like Cumberland, a battle like Magdala or a town like Ragusa.

Occupation names like Smith (spelled in more than forty ways), Webster and Fletcher are the most common; they include some arts not now practiced, as Lormier, Balaster, Archer. Others in this class had once a humbler sound, as Howard (thorward) and Giltpatrick (Patrick's servant). And many are derived from trade names in other languages than English.

Gen. Baden Powell explained in a Latin verse after Mafeking that his name meant Ap-Joe!; so Pudge is Ap-Hugh. Family names made by an added "s" are often Welsh. The Welsh names Hughes (or Huws), Williams, Jones and Edwards mean Hughson, Williamson, Johnson, and Edwardson, the English termination being "son," the German "sohn" and the Norse "sen."

Emigration has supplied many names. Hollander, Fleming, French and Frank speak of national origin, though the last may mean simply a freeman. Other names of characterization are Shakespeare, Breakpear, Armstrong, Crook, Leonard (lion heart) and some few names of color, as Black, when applied to a man of dark complexion, like Roderick Dhu or "Black Jack" Logan; but most of the early Greens, Whites and Browns must have been so named for varying reasons.

Names of animals were too obvious to be omitted. Bernard, Fox, Palmer, Elephant is turned into a proper name in Italy; why not in England? Coon is hardly ever if ever an animal name; it may be cut down from Coquihoun or some other longer spelling as d'Hervey in Hardy's "Tess" was changed into "Dorothy." Along our northern border French Canadian names are spelled by sound, with queer results, like "Lavage" for l'aveque and "Fobare" for Foubert. Napoleon guessed that his name, Bonaparte, came from the Greek Lakoneros, with the same meaning of "good part." The Pheas, birds, Becks, Brooks and Hollis show how names were early given by observation. Traced to their source, indeed, few names have a less prosaic or fanciful origin than the Indian Thunder-Cloud or Young-Man-with-a-Wart.

Horse Had Earned His Ease.
Old Putnam, the 18-year-old pet horse of battery C Fifth United States artillery, died at Fort William McKinley, near Manila, December 12. Old Putnam, who had been enjoying well-earned ease on the retired list after his useful life, first went to the Philippine Islands in 1898 with the 4th battery. He was later assigned to Capt. Reilly's battery F Fifth field artillery, with that battery in China. When the allied armies arrived at Pekin, Putnam and another horse by the name of Corredor were pulling the first of the American light field guns. Just as they had started up a hill to gain one of the positions overlooking the city, Corredor's traces broke, and a moment later, after that horse had been cut away from the gun, Putnam, straining every muscle, started up the hill, arriving there in time for the American gun to open the first fire in the storming of Peking.

The Opera in History.
In the course of the opera is one of the oldest forms of entertainment, for its origin is to be found in old Greek drama. In its modern sense, however, it dates from the year 1600, when Peri produced the first true Italian opera to give the festivities of the marriage of Henry IV. of France and Maria de Medici. The work attracted great attention, and many Italian nobles flocked to the court. In France the opera was the outcome of the ballet and its branch of the masque. Purcell is entitled to the honor of having written the first real English opera, although one of Ben Jonson's masques was set to music as early as 1617.

Two of a Kind.
A distinguished specialist in Washington was called upon a week or two ago by an eminent government official, for treatment for a nervous ailment. "The first thing you must do," said the physician, after an examination, "is to give up both smoking and drinking."

Whereupon the eminent official became real peevish. "Look here, doctor," he burst out, "the most trying case of my engagement!"

"The one I made to get married," said the Baltimore American.

The All-Wool Policy.

NOTICE.—Believing that the day will come when all things will be branded what they really are, we began agitating with men well up in the manufacture of clothing—an all-wool policy—and we have succeeded to no small degree in the advancement of such an idea.

Today, some of the best concerns, namely, Stein-Bloch and Hamburger Bros., are making into the finished garments no cloth which is not absolutely all wool and free from cotton fiber. These goods are braided all wool and will stand the test. We do not hope to increase our sales by the information furnished along these lines or the part we are taking for the betterment of the clothing business, but we hope to raise it to a higher standard for the common good. Stein-Bloch and Hamburger Bros., Spring and Summer Suits are now on display and easily shown from our dust-proof modern cabinets.

Prices range $15 to $35 from

We will take pleasure in showing you any day in the week from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The All-Leather Policy.

Can only be established and maintained by selling goods of a standard brand and selling the best grades of these brands. J. M. Eclipse and W. L. Seek Aid for Kentucky School.

Accompanied by a number of New York members of the House, Representative John W. Langley, of Kentucky, goes to New York City to appeal for financial aid for the Eastern Kentucky Normal College, located at Louisa. An effort will be made to induce either the Rockefeller, Sage or the Carnegie Educational Board to endow the college. With Senator Bob Taylor, of Tennessee, Langley will deliver an address at the dedication of the new building of the normal college.

Pardoned.

In Boston in 1907 Joseph A. Isagi was sentenced to prison for 14 years for embezzling $229,000 of trust funds. He is a former Turkish Consul. A dispatch from Boston on Saturday says he has been released by a pardon.
